Postmodern feminism - Wikipedia

New Criticism. A literary movement that started in the late 1920s and 1930s and originated in reaction to traditional criticism that new critics saw as largely concerned with matters extraneous to the text, e.g., with the biography or psychology of the author or the work's relationship to literary history.

Introduction to Modern Literary Theory - Kristi Siegel

This article discusses the gendered nature of politics (as practice) and political science (as an academic discipline). It studies the sex-typing characteristic of most institutions in the modern world and describes how gender shapes the ways people organize, think, and know about the world. The article then identifies the changes that have occurred in politics and political science over the ...

This chapter discusses different types of punishment in the context of criminal law. It begins by considering the four most common theories of punishment: retribution, deterrence, rehabilitation, and incapacitation. Attention then turns to physical punishments, with an emphasis on the death penalty, and removal of an offender from a territory through banishment.
