Silent Sara Alva

What struck me most about Silent written by Sara Alva is the honesty of Seb and Alex's story. It isn't pretty, you might get angry many, many times, and sad many, many times. But just like with anything, there are some bright moments to balance all of that darkness.

I'll be attending the Gay Romance Literature conference in San Diego this October. It took a bit of coaxing from fellow authors — I'm not always the most social of people ☹️ -but given that I have the comfort of driving there (and speeding away in my new getaway car if need be), I bit the bullet and signed up late as a supporting author.

Today I'm excited to host an intro to Sara Alva's SILENT, a bold and unpredictable m/m romance about losing—and finding—home. First I'll share my thoughts about this fearless and beautiful new novel, and then I'll give you a little inside look at the first chapter. *** With some romance novels, there's deep pleasure in predictability.

This is the biography page for Sara Alva. Sara Alva is a former small-town girl currently living in big-city L.A. with a husband, two cats, and an avocado tree. She recently discovered— after a year in her house— that she also has a fig tree in her backyard, which might mean she needs to get out more. But sometimes the stories waiting to be told demand more attention, and when she puts ...
