Simply Love Quartet 2 Mary

1. The crocodile of schoolgirls neatly uniformed in dark blue that was making its way along Great Pulteney Street in Bath at the spanking pace set by Miss Susanna Osbourne, one of its teachers, was proceeding from Miss Martin's School for Girls on the corner of nearby Daniel and Sutton streets in the direction of the Pulteney Bridge and the city itself on the other side of the river.

Simply Love is the second story in Mary Balogh's Simply Quartet about the four teachers who work at Miss Martin's School for Girls in Bath, and it's the fifth story by her I've read overall. All of her books I've read to date have been somewhat slow-paced, which I've come to recognize as her writing style.

I couldn't put this book down. In fact, I read it twice! I love all of Mary Balogh's novels and this is one of her best. It is part of her series in the "Simply" books. It tells how two people who are scarred physically and emotionally can overcome those obstacles and other prejudices and fall in love.

Simply Love is a stand alone book but is part of her Simply series, it is book 2, also characters from other series, Bedwyn series, do make an appearance now and then in the story. Sensual level I would put at a 7, Ms Balogh writes passion, and the reader feels the hot and sizzle but she is not graphic in her sex descriptions.

Pardon the pun, but this book was "simply forgettable" for me [2.5 stars:] The first in Mary Balogh's Simply Quartet, SIMPLY UNFORGETTABLE was unfortunately not so for me. I am a huge Mary Balogh fan, but this is my least favorite book of hers and I actually had to stop myself from skimming parts at the end (which is just unheard of for me).

Simply Love tells us the story of two people bearing their scars that life has dealt them. After having read A Summer To Remember, I was very well pleased noticing that Ms. Balogh had written a romance for Sydnam Butler. He had immediately aroused my sympathies with his person, simultaneously sensitive, intelligent, and strong.
